

Loggerhead shrikes are declining in population due to:

habitat degradation and land conversion to agricultural purposes

Answer on page 116

Prothonotary
warblers are most often found in...

forested wetlands

Answer on page 132

Central America
and South America

Prothonotary Warblers migrate to ____ for the winter months.

Answer on page 132

red-cockaded
woodpeckers

What animal is about 7 to 8 inches in length and lives in mature pine forests
across the South?

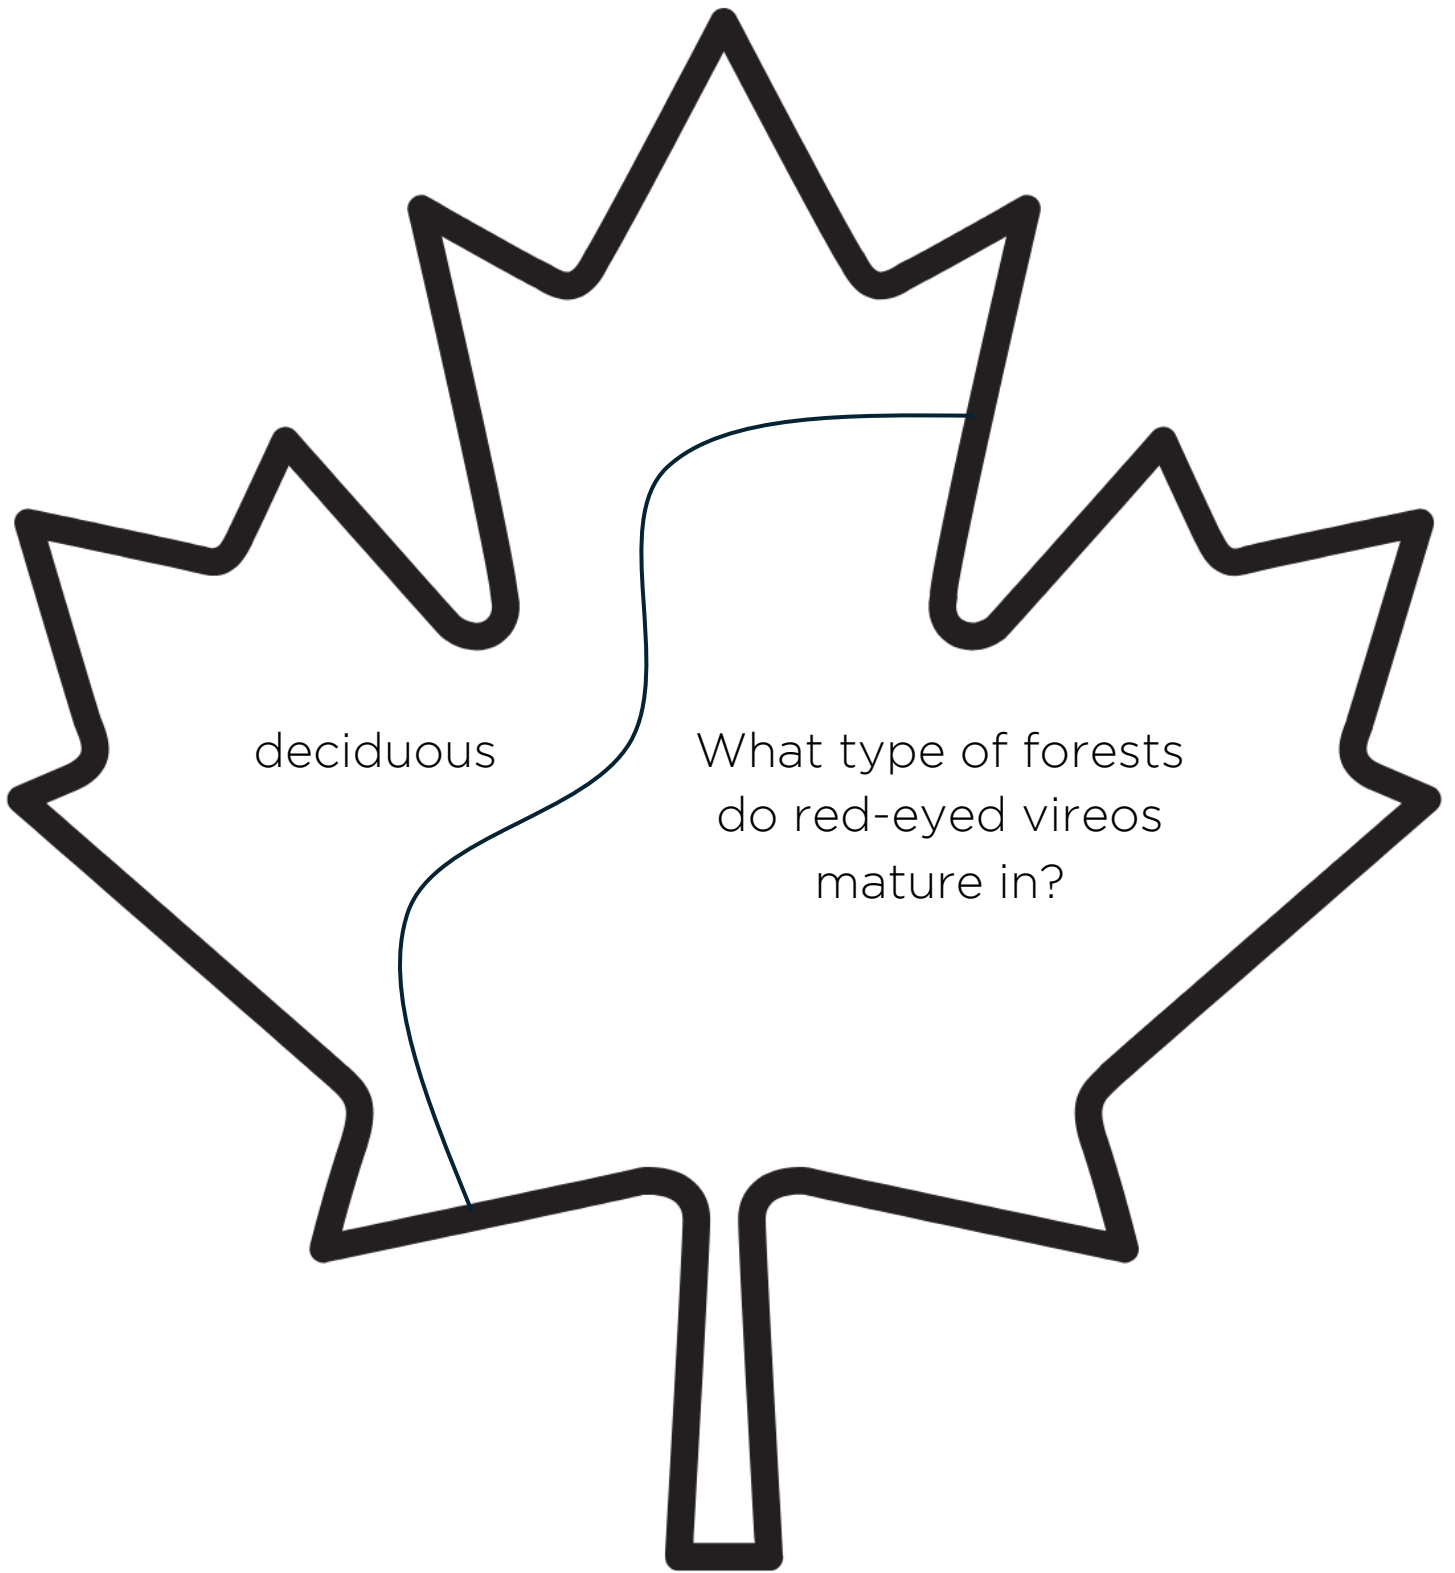

Answer on page 134

What type of trees do red-
cockaded
woodpeckers
tend to live in?

pine

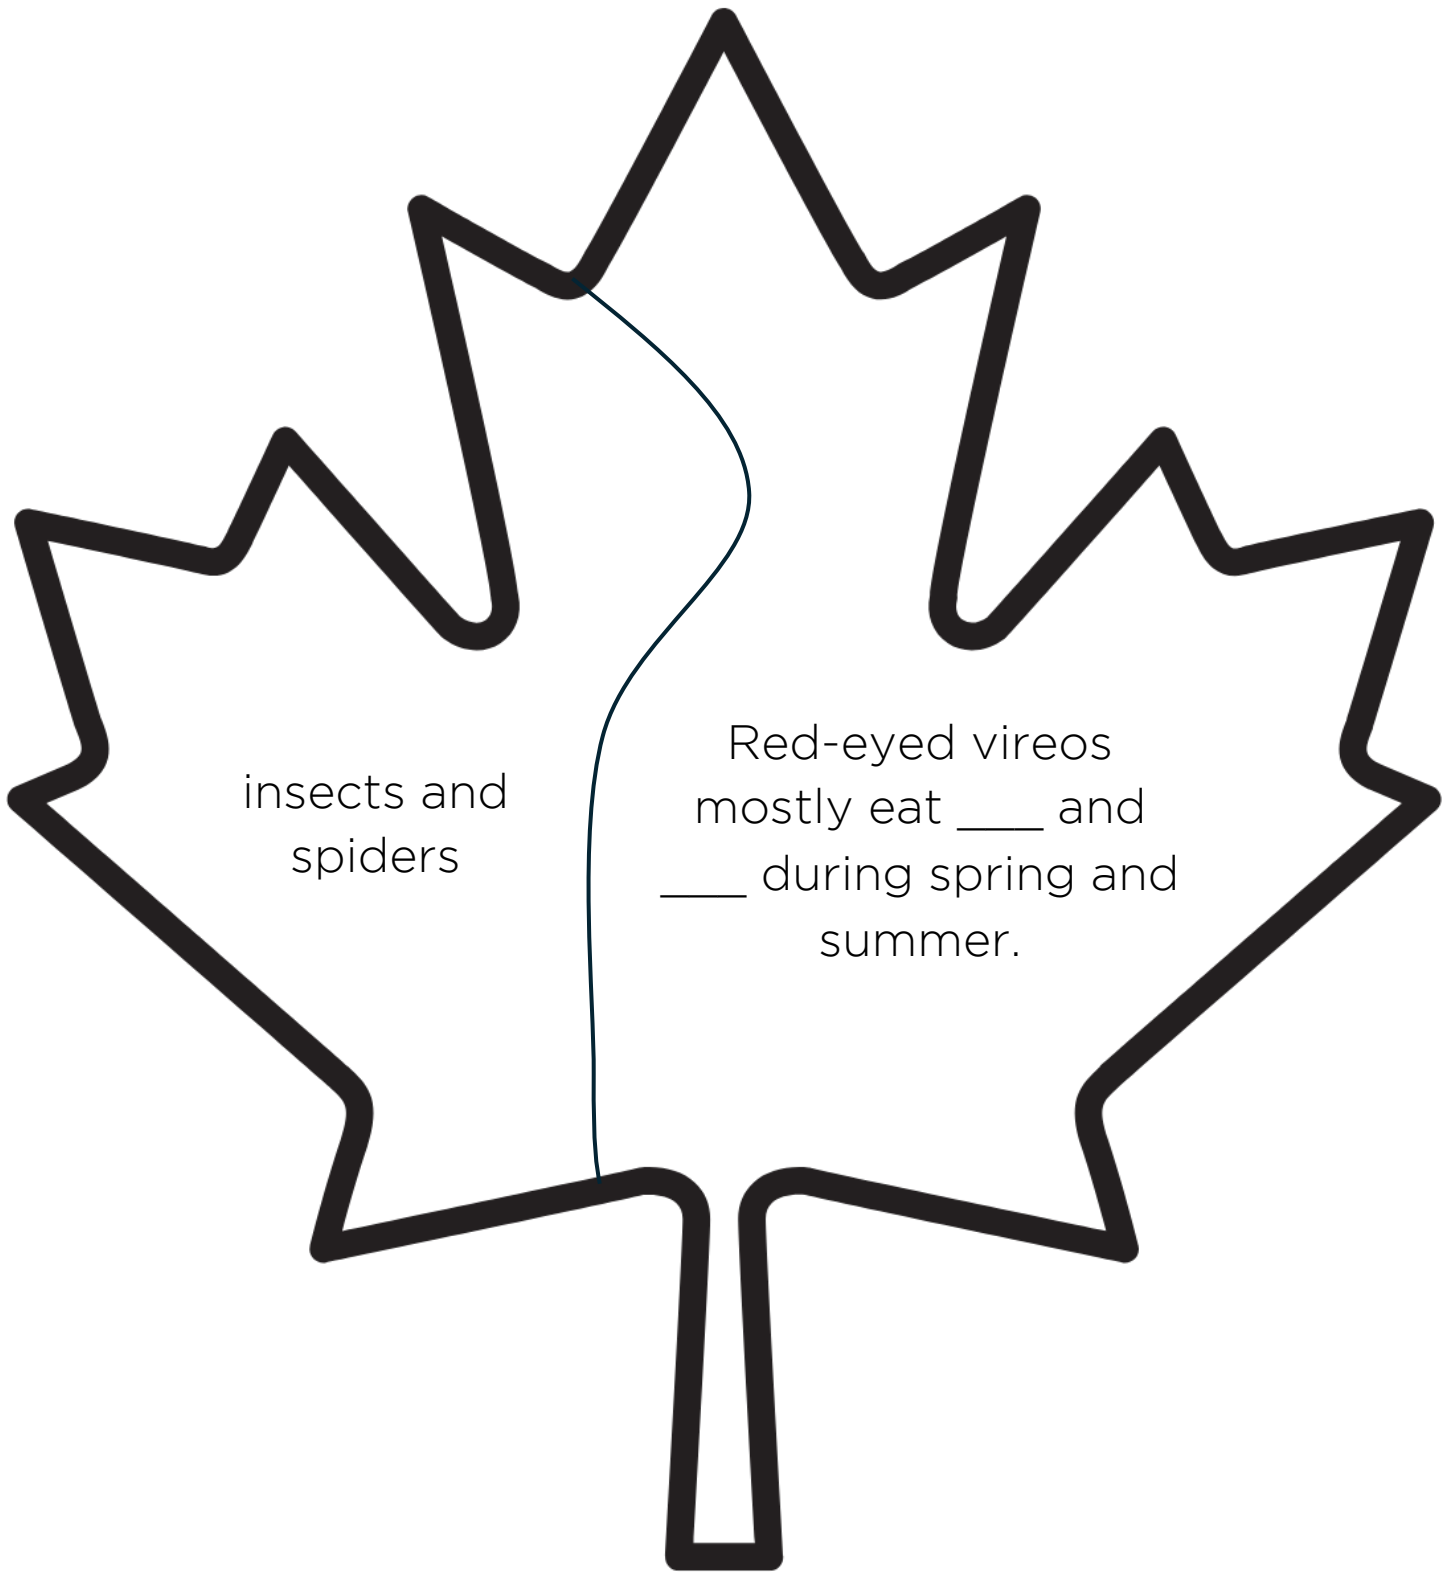

Answer on page 134

deciduous

What type of forests
do red-eyed vireos
mature in?

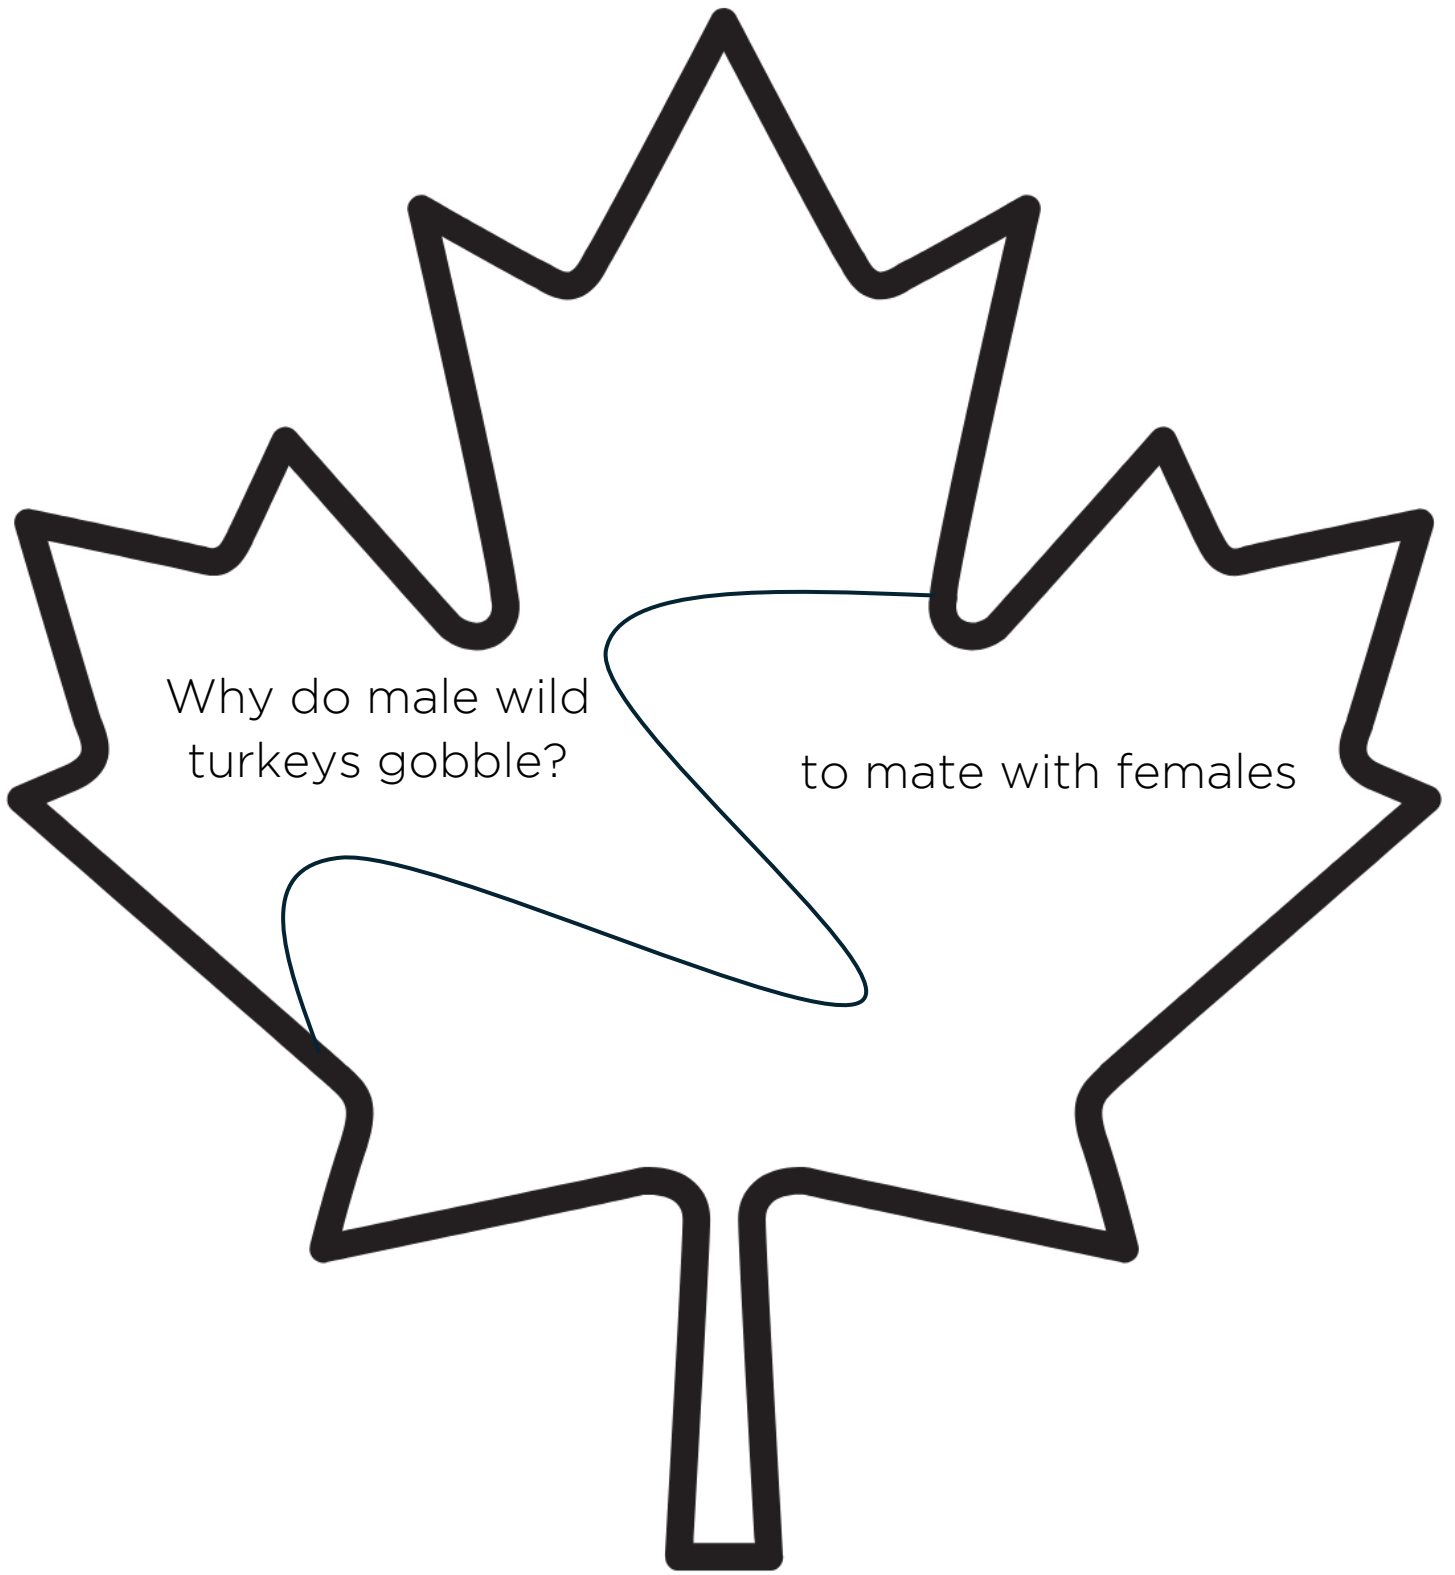

Answer on page 135

insects and
spiders

Red-eyed vireos mostly eat ___ and ___ during spring and summer.

Answer on page 135

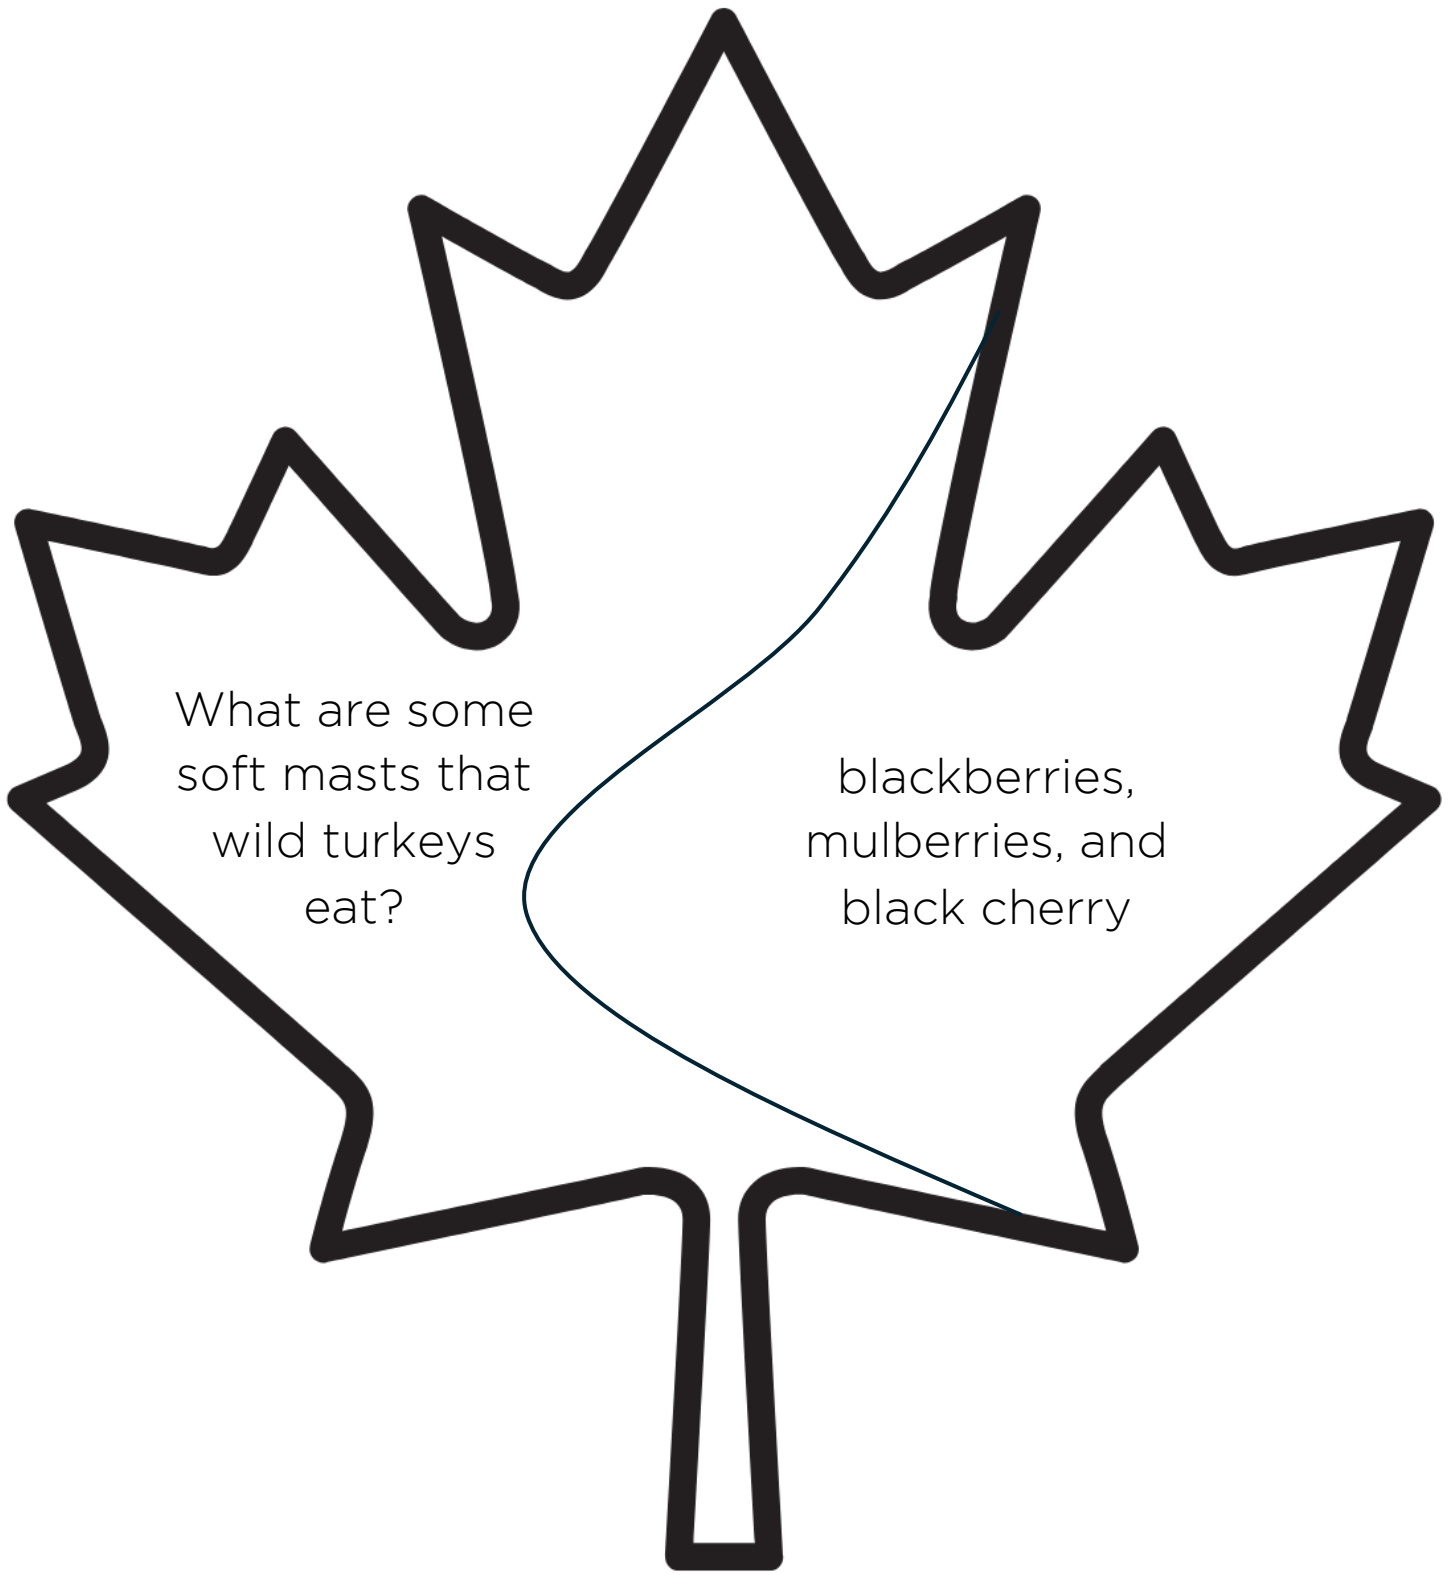

Why do male wild turkeys gobble?

to mate with females

Answer on page 155

What are some soft masts that
wild turkeys
eat?

blackberries,
mulberries, and
black cherry

Answer on page 155

Wood ducks always need _____ to successfully sustain their population.

cavities

Answer on page 158

In the fall and
winter,
wood ducks
primarily
eat ____.

acorns

Answer on page 158

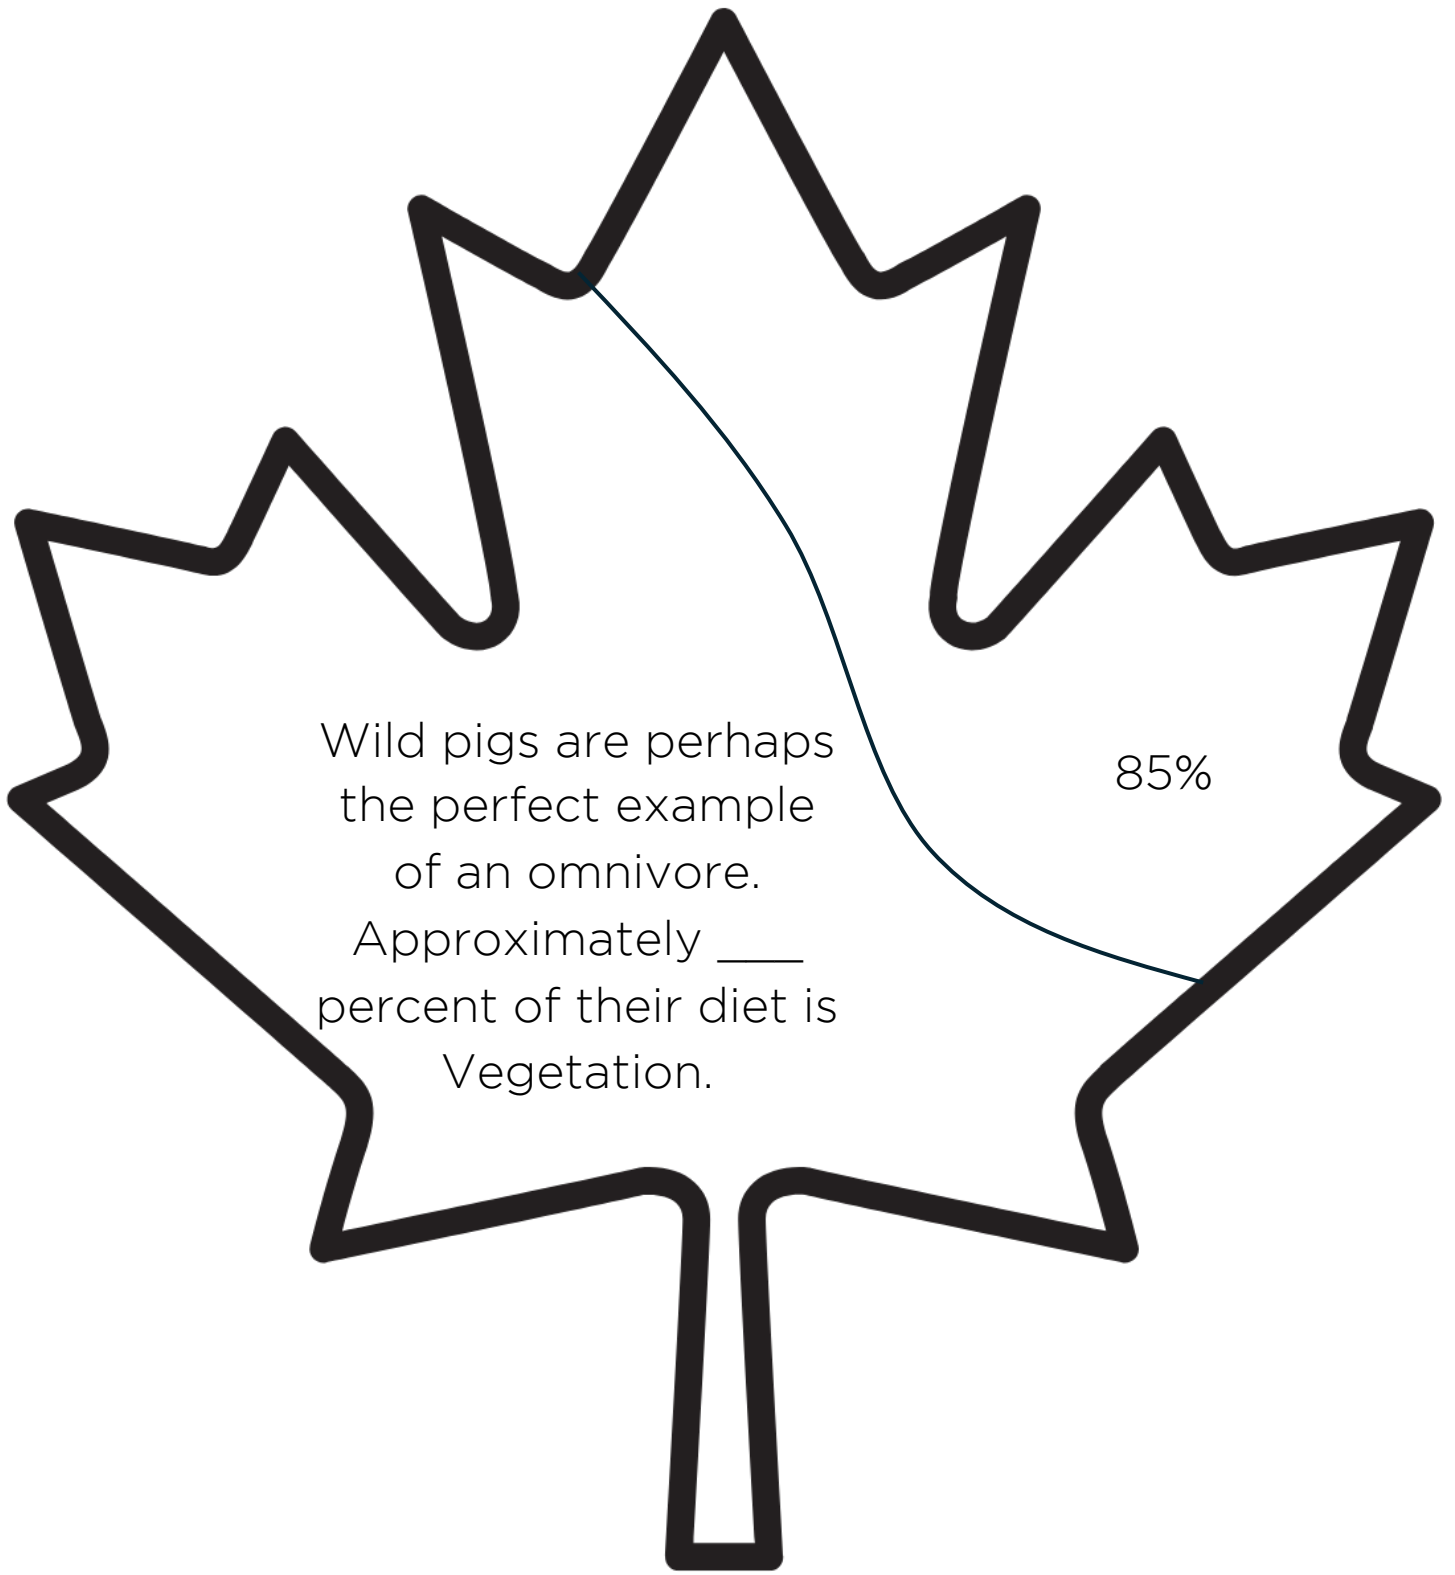

Answer on page 186

foods prepared
for human and pet
consumption

Along with
foraged food,
raccoons also
eat...

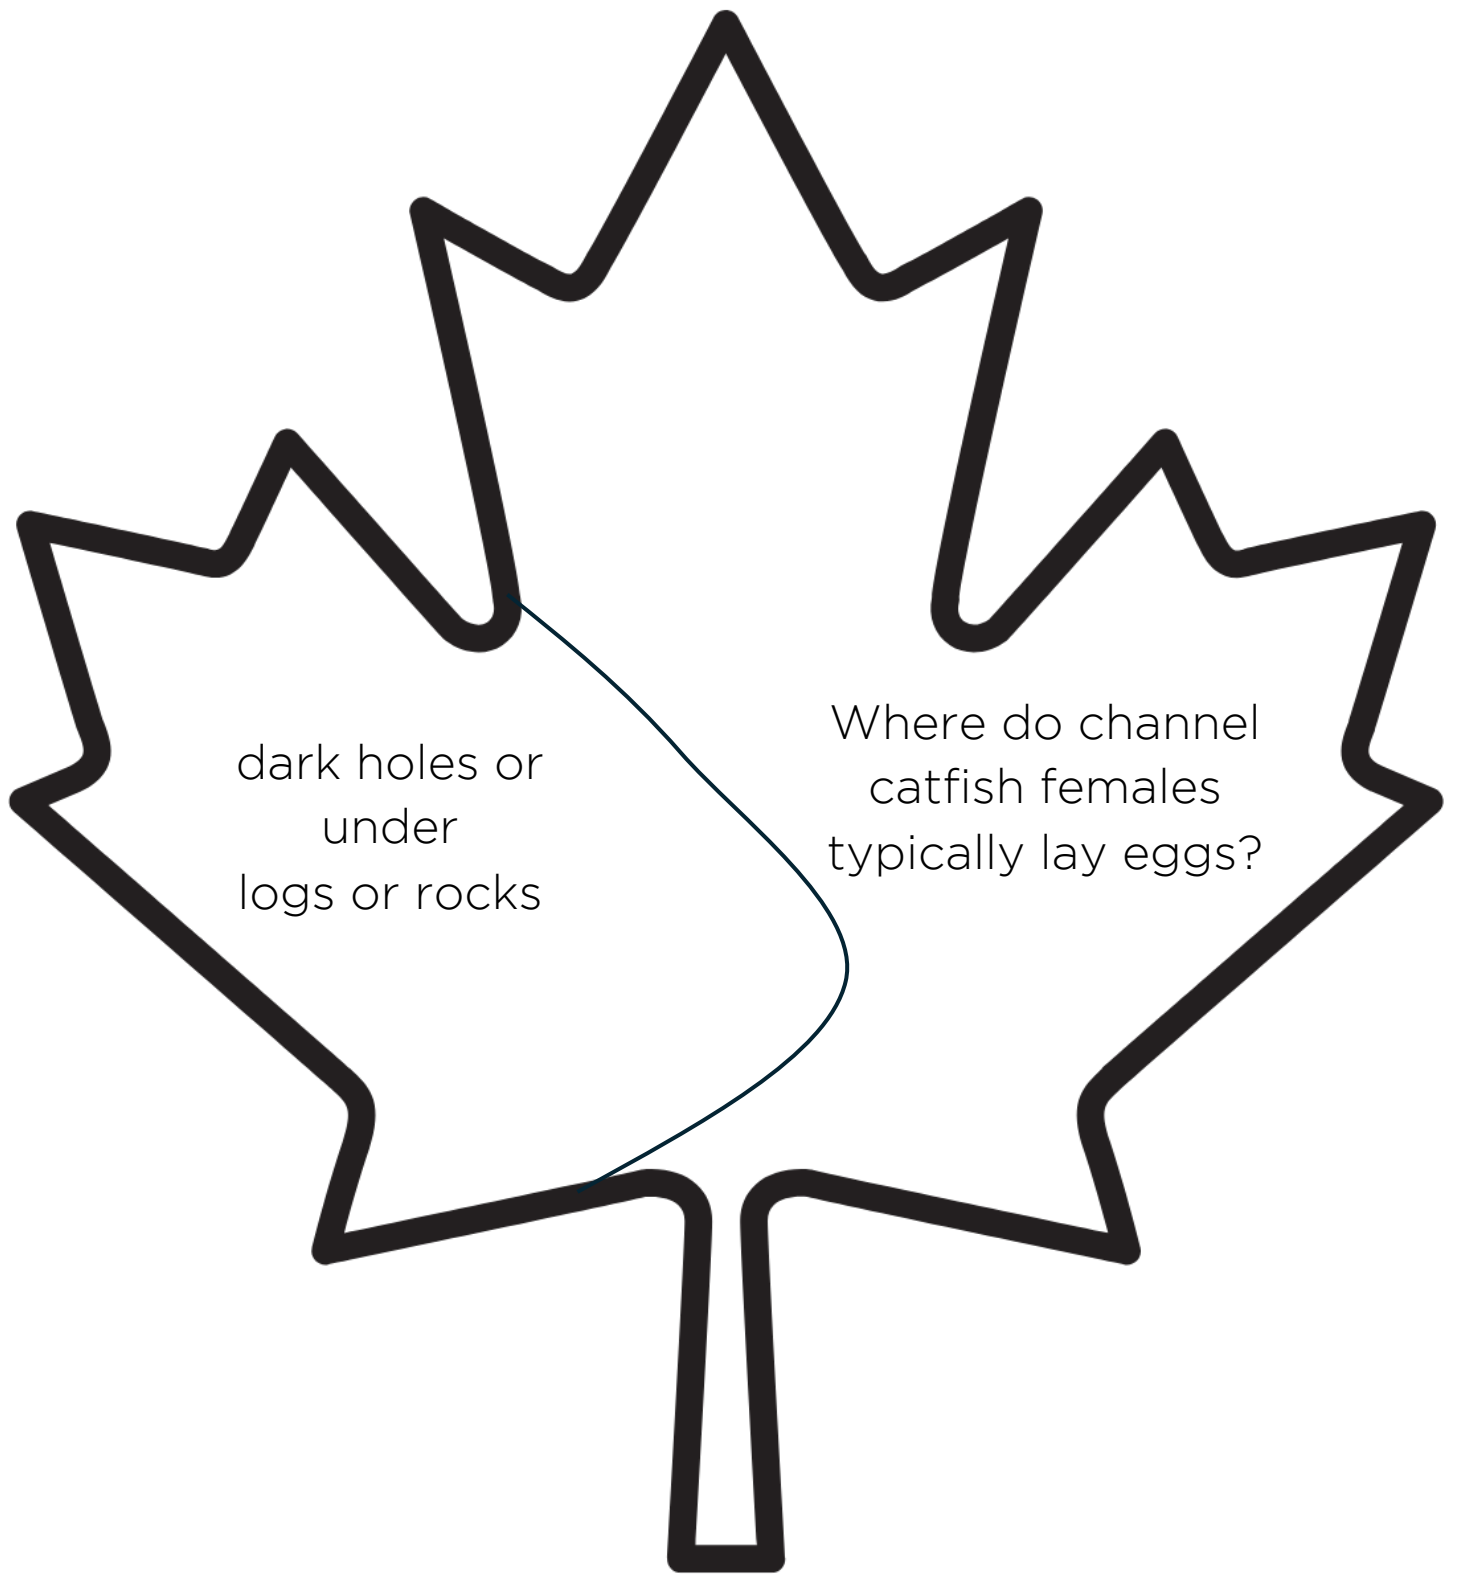

Answer on page 186

Wild pigs are perhaps the perfect example
of an omnivore.
Approximately ___
percent of their diet is Vegetation.

85%

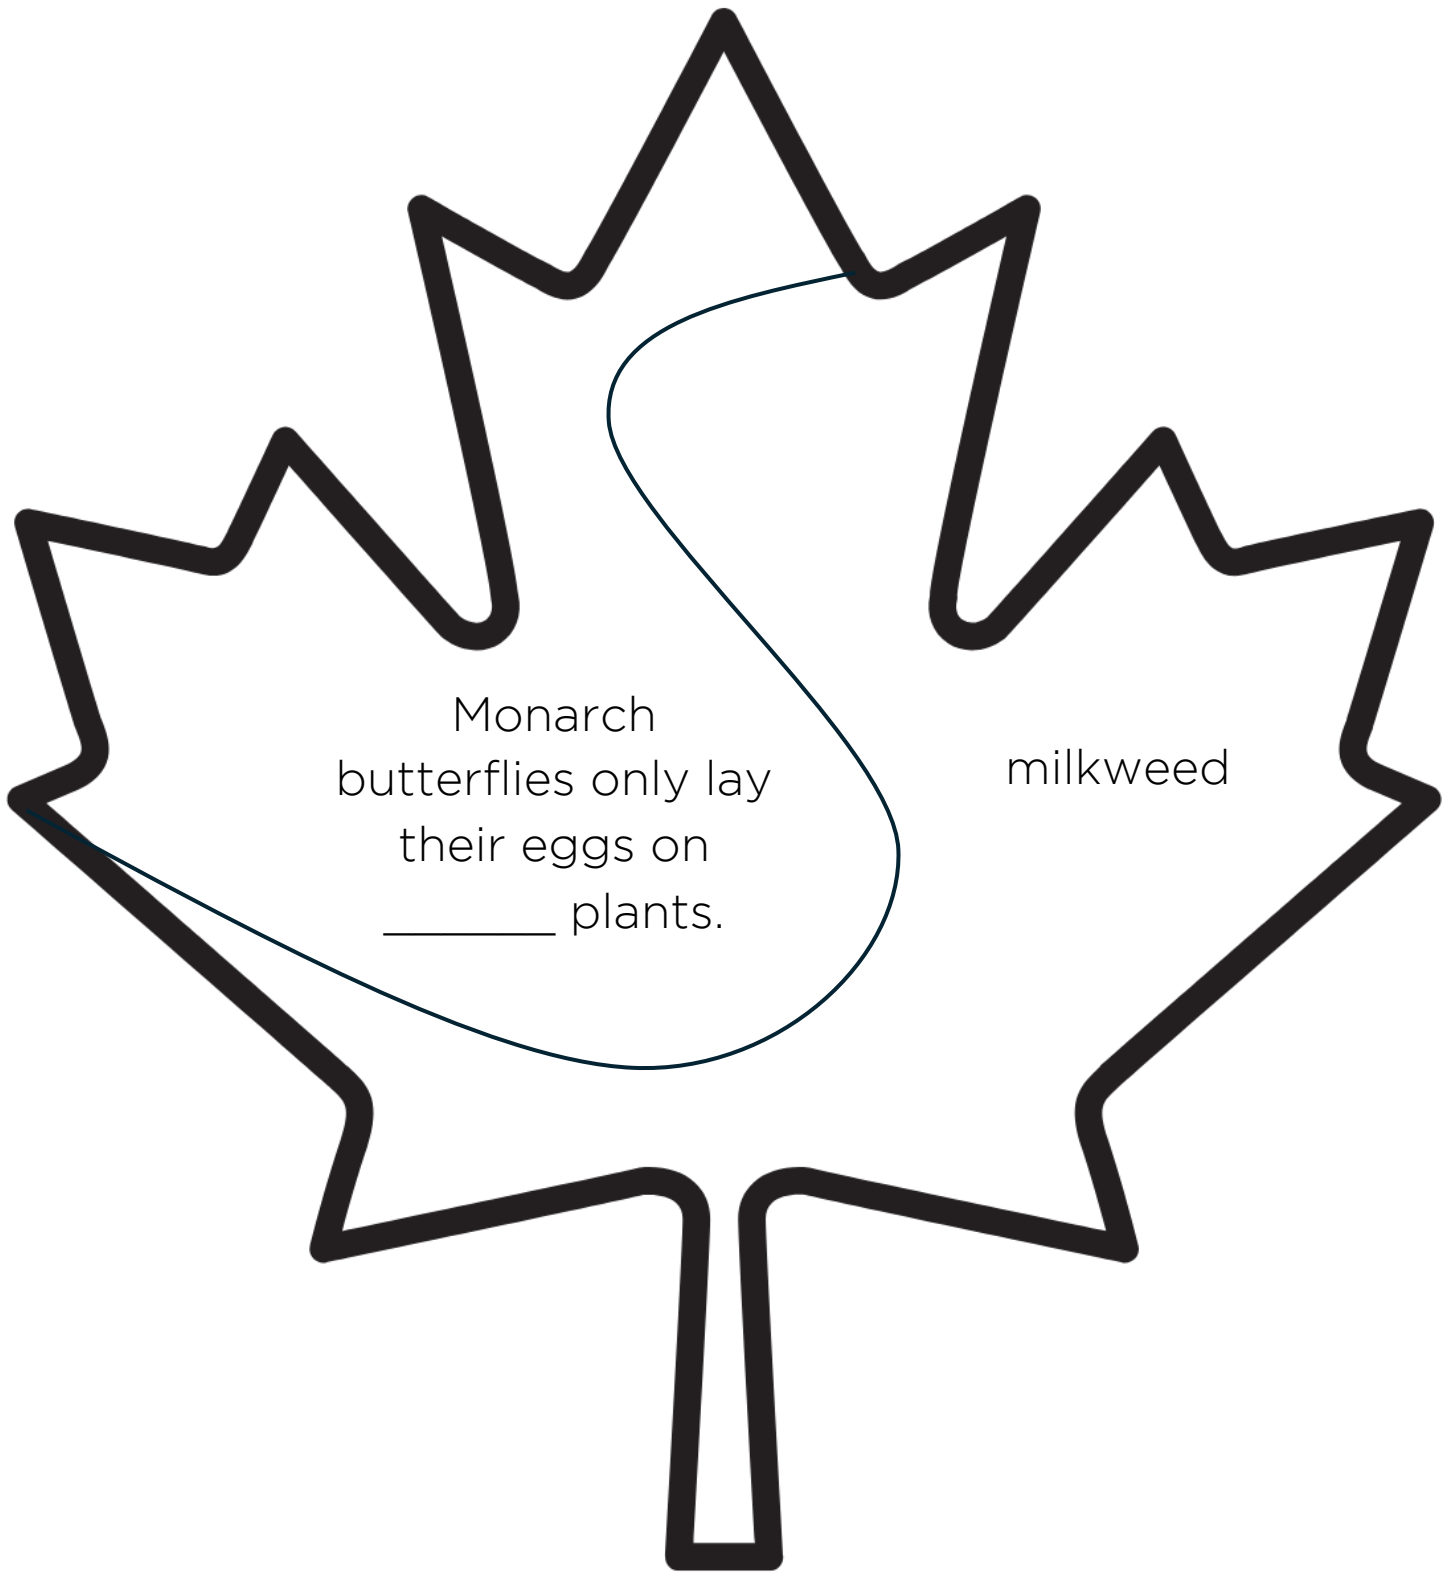

Answer on page 194

dark holes or
under
logs or rocks

Where do channel
catfish females
typically lay eggs?

Answer on page 213

Monarch
butterflies only lay
their eggs on _____ plants.

milkweed

Answer on page 219

What do eastern
indigo snakes eat?

small mammals,
frogs, lizards, fish,
eggs, birds, and
other snakes

Answer on page 197

True

True or False: Coyotes are found throughout the continental U.S. and have even been observed in large cities and urban areas.

Answer on page 171